Drawing relies on a clear vision. It also requires thought which, in, turn, builds understanding. Drawing cannot be detached from seeing and thinking about the fundamental nature of the subject matter being represented. The knowledge and understanding gained through drawing from life directly enhances our ability to draw from the imagination.

The creative process is not linear. Its a loop and hence a never ending process. An artist just keeps traversing the loop again and again throughout his life. But every traversal of the loop makes her a better artist and her works more mature. Creative process is like a roller coaster ride of emotions. Generally the lows are more than the highs.

A once-in-a-lifetime glimpse inside Raphael's creative process. Raphael: The Drawings brings together 120 of the artist's exquisite drawings – a third of his extant works on paper – to Oxford from collections around the world. It's a highly intimate exhibition, revealing the interests and pleasures of the artist, and locating drawing as the place in which the artist's creativity was at its most spontaneous.
