In Nudge, Richard Thaler and Cass Sunstein discuss at length how choices are designed and how we can make better decisions in personal finance, health, relationships, etc. A few takeaways: □ A 'Nudge' is anything which pushes people slightly in one direction or to make some decision through context and design. It is a 'choice architecture' which alters people's behavior in a predictable way without restricting any options.

Every day we make choices—about what to buy or eat, about financial investments or our children's health and education, even about the causes we champion or the planet itself. Unfortunately, we often choose poorly. Nudge is about how we make these choices and how we can make better ones. Using dozens of eye-opening examples and drawing on decades of behavioral science research, Nobel Prize winner Richard H. Thaler and Harvard Law School professor Cass R. Sunstein show that no choice is ...

Nudge: Improving Decisions About Health, Wealth, and ...

Our mistakes make us poorer and less healthy; we often make bad decisions involving education, personal finance, health care, mortgages and credit cards, the family, and even the planet itself. In Nudge, Thaler and Sunstein invite us to enter an alternative world, one that takes our humanness as a given. They show that by knowing how people think, we can design choice environments that make it easier for people to choose what is best for themselves, their families, and their society.
